REAL ESTATE MATTERS.

More About Rents-What William B. Astor Thinks of the Situation-The Tenants' Remedy-Auction Sales Yesterday.

The question of rents continues to be the leading subject of interest in the real estate market, as it is one that enjoys a much more extended attention than that given it within strictly real estate circles. The popular feeling in this regard continues active as ever for a decline, which every day exhibits more and more weakness on the part of landlords, and an increasing disposition among them to yield to the reasonable expectations of tenants. A glance at the advertising columns of the HERALD will de monstrate this in the most unmistakable manner in two ways-first, from the great number of houses offering to rent, and secondly, in the manifest pressure to let, shown in the large proportion of them an-nounced as offered to rent at reduced figures. It is not, indeed, too much to say at this time that the rent market has fairly broken, and our prophecy of a very considerable reduction in April bids fair to exceed our expectations at the time it was made We have already spoken of Mr. A. T. Stewart's tes timony on this point in his late action ordering a general abatement upon the rental of all his pro-perty. We have another equally important witness, who corroborates Mr. Stewart. A correspondent, who furnishes his name and address, writes to us as

As a subscriber and regular reader of your paper I have been struck with the very correct remarks upon the subject of house rents. From what you observe this morning as to Mr.A. T. Stewart's course in reducing rents I am led to give my experience with William B. Astor, whose tenant I have been for six years, In West Phirty-third street. On the 10th of January Astor notified me that the rent of the house would be raised from $5,000 to $3,700. I declined to pay the increase and a bill was put on the house. On the 21st of March (a week ago) Astor's agent cathed and offered me the house at $3,500, having found that he could not get the advance he had demanded. The influence of your articles decided me not to take the ence of your articles decided me not to take the house at $3,500 even. But I asked it that was his lowest price. He replied that it was, on 22d March be rented the house at $3,250, which is a decime of tweive ten-twentieths from his first asking price. When Astor drops as quickly as that rents are weak undeed.

when Astor drops as quickly as that rents are weak indeed.

Owners of properly who fail to see in this the handwriting on the wail which warns them that their reign of extortion is over, that their nest interests require that they should allow some drawback from the extravagant tolls they have levied upon overburdened tenants, year after year, must be dull indeed. Some few of them may succeed in perpetuating their tyrainly for another year, but it will be the last. The remedy is near at hand, in a general exodus from the crowded streets of the metropolis to the wider freedom of shourdan districts. We have noticed several schemes in progress to direct and stimulate this movement, and learn by the following notice, which appeared in one of our evening papers on Monday, that there are still others, we quote:—

"A New York capitalist has completed the nurchase."

lowing nonce, which appeared in one of our evening papers on Monday, that there are still others, We quote:

"A New York capitalist has completed the purchase of a tract of territory nearly three mines square, about twenty miles from the city, on the line of a railroad leading hither. Large gaings of men have been set to work constructing oroad theroughfares and cress streets, levelling the ground and laying it out in sections and village lots. The design is to convert the region into a tariving community, comprising a village and capacions country homes surrounding it, the entire population to be drawn from New York. The projector of this scheme, only second in magnitude to that of A. T. Stewart on Long Island, has succeeded with several minor undertakings of a similar character, and he is confident that this one will likewise be a decided success. We have no doubt but that his annicipations will be realized. There are thousands of people in this overcrowded city who would be giad to move out into the surrounding country were the way prepared for them to do so. Capitalisis have but to hold out the necessary inducements as regards price and time for payment of building lots and dwellings in order to secure a hegira from the metropolis and realize handsomely on their investments in the long run."

It will not be long before the successful culmination of projects like these will seriously affect the value of dwelling house property in this city and Brooklyn, more especially in the latter city, and Brooklyn, more especially in the latter city and Brooklyn, more especially in the latter city and Brooklyn, more especially in the latter city and Brooklyn, more especially in

There was more than the usual animation in the real estate market yesteroay and a considerable increase in the number of transactions. The feeling in the market, nowever, is unfavorable to dealings, the agitation respecting remis operating to check alike investments and speculation. The uncertainty respecting the action of the House upon the Funding bill is also a conservative influence here, as in the stock market, and the present belief in its defeat bearish in its effect. The attendance at the sales yesterday was good and the bidding fairly spirited. Subjoined are the particulars:—

FREE LOVE IN YORKVILLE.

Too Much for the Stomach of the Court-Impossible to Deal Out Justice—All Hands Sent Off "On Their Ear," Justice Coulter, the presiding magistrate at the Yorkville Police Court for this week, had a case of free love brought to his notice yesterday morning. Philip Kuhl and Herman Leutz, both young men of German extraction, were arraigned by Philip Kuhl and Herman Leutz, both young men of German extraction, were arraigned by officer McGee, of the Nineteenth precinct, who had arrested them yesterday atternoon, on Third avenue, opposite the depot, where they were engaged in a rough and tumbe fight. Kuhl wore mourning on one of his eyes, and his face was otherwise badly scratched, white Leutz had received but little or no punishment—at least he did not show any. Kuhl's wife was also present, and from the revelations made to the Court it appeared that she was the cause of the whole trouble.

Kuhl stated that he had been married but a short time to the young woman, who was present. He set up housekeeping after the marriage in East Tenth street, and Leutz being out of employment he took her to live with him. More than that, he endeavored to get his friend, who was a bookkeeper, employment, which he at last succeeded in doing. Returning home from work one day somewhat sooner than he expected he was terribly shocked to find Leutz in bed with his wife. The consequence of his discovery was that Leutz was dismissed from the house, and Kuhl and his wife, whom he continued to love as much as ever, moved up town. Shortly after she mysteriously disappeared, and it was not until yesterday that poor Kuhl discovered her whereabouts. While on his way to Harlem in search of her, yesterday, he accidentally met her and Leutz at the Third Avenne Railroad depot, about to take the cars. What followed has already been stated. The wife was asked by the Court to go back and live with her husband, which she vehemently refused to do. The Court ten asked her to go along with Leutz, but she smillingly snook her head. Justice Coulter, in disgust told them all to clear out, and they did so, Mrs. Kunl falling behind her husband to exchange a word with Lautz, while poor Kunl went out with a dejected appearance.

word with Luttz, while poor Kunl went out with a dejected appearance.

ALLEGED GRAND LARCENY.

Charles Rice was atraigned on complaint of Mr. Andrew A. Bouker, doing business at No. 69 South street, from whom he stole eleven dollars! worth of canvas and five pieces of hempen rope, valued at forty-three dollars. A man named Horace Hursted, to whom he had sold some of the stolen property, informed Mr. Bouker who then caused Rice's arrest. The prisoner was committed for examination. At the examination of this case some startling developments are expected to be made, which at present are too vague and untellable to be published.

A POLLTRY THIEF.

George Wilson was brought up charged with having made a raid last night on the poultry yard of John F. Leddy, of 555 West Porty-second street, and stealing therefrom three ducks and one goose. He

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

TUESDAY, March 29-6 P.M. The various branches of business in Wall street were again characterized by general dulness. Especially is this remark true of

THE GOLD MARKET, which was absolutely quiet and "flat," the extreme range in the price being from 111% to 112, both exceptional quotations, as the bulk of dealings oc-curred at 111% a 111%. The change from the strength of yesterday is due to the decline in rates for exchange. The speculative feeling rather favors an advance, on account of the programme of gold sales for April and the renewed prospects of the defeat of the Funding bill in the House, where, according to the Washington despatches to-day, a warm debate was in progress between Secretary Boutwell and the agents of the national banks. In the neutralizing effects of the two influences thus opposed to each other the lower rates for exchange swayed the gold market. The course of the price is exhibited in the

THE MONEY MARI	CET MORE ACTIVE.

There was more inquiry for money and little difficulty was had in procuring five per cent among the stock houses, although the leading government houses continued to be supplied at four to five. The activity was felt for a brief time only in the interval of the half hour to the closing of the banks, and was fully met at the higher of the rates above quoted. STOCKS STRONG AND DULL.

While the general market at the Stock Exchange was dull there was considerable activity in a few favorites and a firm undertone to the general list, which would indicate that now, with gold as near bottom as it can reasonably be expected to go for the present, the cliques are about to start a new bull movement, the success of which, however, will depend upon the alliance and support given them by the public and smaller operators. The evidence of this new movement was furnished in Northwestern and Pacific Mail, which have been selected on account of the enormous "short" interest outstanding in both, Fort Wayne was firm on the prospect of a further cash dividend to represent the undivided assets when the road was perpetually leased by the Penn-sylvania Central. Otherwise the railways were strong at an improvement of a quarter to a half per cent, excepting New York Central scrip, which declined to 88%. It would seem that the Central clique, having bought in their stocks to get the dividend, are now quietly selling them back to the public, in whose hands they are very likely to follow the old precedent and decline. As the next dividend day approaches the clique will buy again, obtain the eight per cent cash and sell out as before. This plan of "winning the dividends" was quite successfully practised on the stocks whose dividends fell due last fall. If present appearances are any sign, it would appear that the cliques are about repeating another of their strategic methods of speculation-viz., by visiting the shares on the stock list consecutively. They operated on this principle with great profit last spring. They seem now to have a team in band to lead off withviz., Northwestern and

PACIFIC MAIL.

The movement is rather more decided in the latter, and the "point" is being quietly distributed that it is "the next card." The "bulls" in it now are the same individuals who, a few months since. were sanguine it was going to 25 or even 20. It naturally forms a good basis for a "buli" movement, as the street is heavily short of it, the public forgetting the advice of old operators to "sell a highpriced stock, but buy a low-priced one." It lends over, the annual report of the company is expected in a few days, and will show assets sufficient to justify a reaction. Some of the features of this report have "leaked" out as follows:-

In other words the "bulls" claim that the assets of the company are fully capable of redeeming the stock at fifty cents on the dollar. The allowance of four millions for the twenty-two steamers (there were twenty-three before the Golden City was lost on the Pacific coast) seems a very modest one, while it is asserted that the real estate in San Francisco has tripled in value since its purchase when the company started. The Panama Railroad has recently given up the "brig line" of vessels between Panama and San Francisco, which rivalry in the freight business is now at an end, while, with the prospect of a million subsidy from Congress and the opening of a canal across the isthmus, which will enable the steamships to compete with the Pacific Railroad for the heavier kinds of freight and for second class travel, better times are prophesied to be in store for majestic old Pacific Mail. SOUTHERN SECURITIES STRONG.

The Southern list was steady and dun at the boards, but became rather active, and closed strong in later dealings on the street. The Virginias and Louisianas reacted from the depression and decline of last week, while the new South Carolinas were very firm. The new Tennessees showed considerable movement. In the North Carolinas the new bonds were a trifle better in consequence of the adjournment of the Legislature and postponement of repudiation measures such as were adopted in the case of the "special tax" issues. TRADES' UN ON TERRORISM.

A Man May Starve, but He Must Not Work at Reduced Wages, or He May Got "a Ball Through Him."

At the Court of Special Sessions yesterday, before Justices Leawith, McQuade and Scott, Owen Clarke was charged with assaulting Leopold Phillips by kicking him while on his passage from New York to Brooklyn on the ferryboat. This quarrel originated out of the jealousies and machinations of a trades' union. Phillips, the complainant, who was a Lancashire man, and who arrived in this country on Christmas, said that he was an iron moulder and worked in Fourteenth street, at makson's from works. He was on the ferryboat when the defendant and several other men came up to him, and after talking to him about his going to work for less wages began to strike him, and duded with kicking aim from one can of the ferryboar to the other.

strike him, and ended with kicking him from one end of the ferryboas to the other.

Two men named Cann and Jackson also gaze confirmatory evidence, and said that one of the men tood them not to go to work there again or there would be a ball put through them.

The defendant was placed on the stand and said that he had been at those works since 1857; that a strike had existed in this shop since the 18th of December: he went up to the complainant and told him that he was being wrong in going to those works and working at a reduction of wages, and that he was taking the bread and butter out of his defendant's) lamily a months and this 6 of several handred men; complainant answered that he had a perfect right to do so if he though; well. rell.
In cross-examination this witness admitted that well.

In cross-examination this witness admitted that he and other men had followed the complainant and others from their work.

Mr. Spencer, who appeared on behalf of the complainant, said that he was anxious to say to the Court that Mesers, Jackson do not wish the defendant to be more published than was necessary to warn others from repeating this offence. They wished to mention the fact that this man was in all probability acting under an organization. They wished to say.

POLITICS IN THE COURTS.

Was Joseph McGuire Fraudulently Elected Civil Justice of the Seventh Judicial District ?-John A. Stemmler vs. Joseph McGuire.

In Supreme Court Chambers the case of the People ex rel. John A. Stemmler vs. Joseph McGuire came up yesterday before Judge Ingraham on motion of defendant's counsel to make the complaint more definite and certain. The case was argued by John K. Porter for the relator and by E. R. Meade for the K. Porter for the relator and by E. R. Meade for the defendant. On benalf of McGuire it was argued by Mr. Meade that the allegations of the complaint were not specific in their character, and that political expressions were employed without definition. "Repeating" was charged, and yet "repeating" was not a term that could be defined. It was charged that there was fraudulent voting, but whether by women, children or negroes did not appear. The motion was based upon section 160 of the code—"When the allegations of a pleading are so indefinite or uncertain that the precise nature of the charge or defence is not appearent the court may require the pleading to be made definite and certain by amendment." The decision was reserved. The case will attract wide attention when it is fully developed, for it involves the vitality and purity of the ballot, but as yet the proceedings have been immaterial.

A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

A Man Ground Up in a Phosphate Mixing

A Man Ground Up in a Phosphate Mixing Tub.

(From the Schuylkili (Pa.) Journai, March 23.]

About two o'clock on Taesday morning a young man named william Brinder, about twenty-four years of age, employed at the bone mill of Miller & Smith, beyond the Reading Rolling Mill, met with a horrible death by being ground up in the phosphate mixing lab. The tub is of wood, about five feet in diameter and two and a half feet high, and an upright shaft, supplied with a number of from arms, revolves in the centre, making some twenty-five revolutions a minute. The machine is situated in the second story of the mill. Briner and a carpenter were engaged in cleaning it out at the time of the accident, and the deceased had got inside the tub for this purpose, when by some mischance the belting was shifted from the loose pulley on which it was running, starting the saaft and instantly killing Brinner, whose body was terribly mangled, nearly all his bones being broken. So tightly was the body wedged in the machine that it required a considerable length of time to extricate it. The man who was with Erinner at the time did not seem to be able to give any cause for the accident, but it was probably the result of carelessness. He also narrowly escaped being caught in the machinery. Brinner was a single man, residing with his father in Bridgeport, and had been in the employ of the firm for four or five years, by whom he was considered an excellent workman. Tub.
